AB ART PRESS (Ing. Vladimír Bárta) is one the oldest private publishing houses in Slovakia. Created in 1990 by photographers and publicists Ing. Vladimír Bárta and Vladimír Bárta, Jr., it specialises in visual publications, mostly works on nature, history (castles and towns), architecture, folklore, Slovak regions and tourist guides. It maintains a large archive of artistic and documentary photographs of Slovakia as well as photographs from all over the world. The photographs are also licensed for books and calendars published by other publishing houses, both in Slovakia and abroad.

We create schoolbooks and educational tools for kindergartens, elementary and high schools. All our textbooks are written by a carefully selected team of accomplished authors with extensive knowledge and educational experience in the given subject. These inventive books make it easy to understand and navigate the subject, to practice and remember the studied material, and facilitate practical application of the newly acquired knowledge. Set out on a journey to a better education, we create online training for the majority of our publications.

The new company ALBATROS MEDIA SLOVAKIA is a subsidiary of the Czech Albatros Media a. s. Under ten independent brands, it publishes a broad range of media products in Slovakia including books, interactive CD encyclopaedias and audio recordings. Its portfolio covers all genres, from children's literature and belles-lettres for adults to professional literature, CDs and DVDs. Alongside its publishing activities, the company also operates a book logistics and distribution network supplying Slovak bookstores and libraries under the independent DISTRI.SK moniker.

- Education

Founded by students of architecture on Academy of Fine arts & design, Bratislava in 2007, it gathers young, motivated people to run projects in architectural and cultural field.

Archimera represents an idea that architecture combines various forms of art coexisting on one platform. The publication activity started in 2015 from the research projects especially in relation to architecture of the 20th century which resulted to the C20 series of pocket guides of the architecture of the 20th century, which covers not only Bratislava but also other most important locations in Slovakia. The extensive research publication Architecture of Care is dedicated to post-war construction development in Slovak spas and the monography on the Machnáč Sanatorium in Trenčianske Teplice by famous architect Jaromír Krejcar. The latest titles are Bratislava's modern fountains and another of the C20 guides about the Georgian spa town of Tskaltubo.

- Magazines & Periodicals

ARKUS started out as a publisher of original Slovak literature. Later, we began publishing translated foreign books, focusing on readers of all ages. Most of our production is focused on fiction books of all genres – books about animals, mystery, detective and sci-fi novels, and more. We also publish two magazines for 6–8-years-olds, with a variety of puzzles of all kinds.

The Artforum publishing house was established in 2007, when we decided to start publishing great books and authors that we thought lacked in Slovak bookstores. We published Tracy's Tiger, The Man Who Planted Trees, books by Chaim Potok, Dominik Tatarka, Jón Kalman Stefánsson, Julian Barnes, David Grossman, Nicole Krauss, and others.

We publish around 12 titles per year: Slovak writers that were forbidden during Communism and new authors bringing a refreshing voice to Slovak literature. We also publish translations of world classics missing on the market, however, we mainly focus on translations of interesting new authors, the rising stars of the international scene. Non-fiction, books for children and poetry are a small part of our catalogue.

We place a great emphasis on the appearance of each book; in our eyes a book is a visual entity. We work with the best Slovak graphic designers and illustrators. The vision of Artforum is to encourage and provide ways to experience the adventure of thinking. This is what connects all our books, this is the guiding motif of our publishing plans and intentions.

DAJAMA's mission has always been to promote the regions of Slovakia by publishing guidebooks to its geographical and historical treasures. The guidebooks Around Slovakia map the most beautiful routes and locations to discover Slovakia on foot, by bike, car or air. In the board games – Do you know Slovakia?, Do you know Bratislava? or Do you know the Tatras? children and adults can playfully test their knowledge of Slovakia. The guidebooks in the Knapsacked Travel in Slovakia series are intended mainly for hikers. On Old Postcards is a series describing the history of Slovak towns through old postcards. In the Cultural Heritage of Slovakia and Natural Heritage of Slovakia series we publish books bearing on those topics. The Flying over Slovakia series documents Slovak attractions from a bird's-eye perspective. All of our titles are published in Slovak as well as in several foreign languages. Indeed, the foreign-language editions of our guidebooks are the main focus of our work, which is to make Slovakia's attractions accessible to tourists from abroad. Other books include: Slovakia – feelings and moods, Bratislava Today and Tomorrow, Slovakia (tourist guidebook), Slovak Records, Atlas of Nature, Atlas of Culture, The Beauties of Slovakia (magazine).

The F. R. & G. publishing house and Fragment magazine, one of the leading European cultural journals, came to existence during the communist regime as a samizdat publication. In 1989 – after the Velvet Revolution – all of these activities became legal. However, the publisher's essential mission has not changed at all – they support the publishing of original Slovak works which are characterized by literary quality and long-term value, and which are not primarily meant for commercial success. F. R. & G. also focuses on publishing value-significant literature in translation from the Polish, Serbian, Slovenian, etc.

SLNIEČKOVO, o.z. is an independent publishing house of literature for children and young adults. It focuses on quality translations, and on valuable works by native authors. Its first storybook, Píšťalkár (The Piper), written by Erik Jakub Groch and illustrated by Jana Kiselová-Siteková, was published in 2007 and won the Ministry of Culture Award for illustrations. It was also selected for the IBBY Honour List 2007.

Another book selected for the IBBY Honour list in 2021 was Daniela Lozanová's translation of Predajca šťastia (original title Il venditore di felicità – The Seller of Happiness) by David Cali.

Other award-winning books by Slovak authors are Bola raz jedna láska (Once upon a time there was one love) by Valentín Šefčík (The Most Beautiful Books of Slovakia 2015) and Lara a Nebo (Lara and Heaven) written by Zbyňo Džadoň and illustrated by Jana Kalixová (The Most Beautiful Books of Slovakia 2017).

The aim of the publishing house is to publish children's books with both exceptional stories and illustrations, that teach children to perceive beauty, goodness and art.

SLOVART started to publish books in Slovak in 1991 and over the years became one of the largest trade publishers in Slovakia. Since 1994 we have been publishing books (mainly illustrated) in the Czech Republic too, through our subsidiary, Nakladatelství Slovart Prague. We publish leading Slovak and international authors, books on Slovak and Czech art and architecture, modern non-fiction, and fiction for children. We have been selling co-editions and licences to our books internationally since the early 1990s, e.g. to Poland, Russia, Germany and France. We also import and distribute books in foreign languages, particularly English. Over the course of many years, a number of our titles have been honoured as “Slovakia's Most Beautiful Book” and “Book of the Year”. Our translators have been awarded the prestigious Ján Hollý Prize multiple times for literary translations, as well as the Matej Bel Prize for scientific and professional translations.
